Dear Dir. Paragas:

Greetings from the Philippine Association of Extension Program Implementors Inc. (PAEPI).

We are pleased to inform you that the PAEPI will hold an International Extension Conference with the theme: Global Perspectives: Cultivating Cultural Diversity and Community Empowerment for a Prosperous Future. Hosted by Maejo University, and Co-Organized by Bulacan Agricultural State College (BASC), Pampanga State Agricultural University (PSAU), Iloilo Science and Technology University (ISATU), Camarines Sur Polytechnic College (CSPC), Don Mariano Marcos Memorial University, and the Philippine Association of Agriculturist (PAA) - Tamarind Chapter on December 11-15, 2024 at Maejo University, Chiang Mai, Thailand.

PAEPI believes that this level of engagement would provide valuable opportunities and experiences for extensionists to explore the best extension models and practices in the ASEAN context. It serves as a platform that brings together the private sector, industry players, extension service providers, Academe and Research Institutions, and extensionists to establish networks and cooperation to build a unified and holistic partnership that will sustain ASEAN-driven initiatives and programs for community empowerment and prosperity.

In this regard, may we respectfully invite your teachers and officials to participate in this first meaningful and insightful event of extensionists outside the Philippine setting. The registration covers (3) lunch, (4) snacks, (1) dinner, bus transfers from Chiangmai Airport to the venue, vice-versa, and conference kits.

PAEPI International Extension Conference

Theme: "Global Perspectives: Cultivating
Cultural Diversity and Community Empowerment for a Prosperous Future"

Maejo University, Chiang Mai, Thailand
December 11-15, 2024

 paepibod2024@gmail.com

In an increasingly interconnected world, understanding and appreciating cultural diversity while promoting community empowerment are crucial for sustainable development. The Philippine Association of Extension Program Implementors, Inc. (PAEPI) International Extension Conference aims to address these pressing issues by providing a platform for extensionists, researchers, educators, extension practitioners, and policymakers to exchange ideas. It also serves as a platform for fostering collaboration, innovation, and knowledge exchange across diverse thematic areas. By focusing on education, agriculture, health, engineering, entrepreneurship, and their intersections with culture and gender, the conference seeks to contribute to the advancement of sustainable development and community empowerment for a prosperous and inclusive future.

The PAEPI International Extension Conference is a groundbreaking event that aims to bring together extension professionals, researchers, students, faculties and stakeholders from around the ASEAN region to explore the theme of "Global Perspectives: Cultivating Cultural Diversity and Community Empowerment for a Prosperous Future." This theme reflects the growing recognition of the importance of embracing cultural diversity and empowering communities to achieve sustainable development and prosperity. As we navigate an increasingly interconnected and diverse world, the need to cultivate cultural diversity and empower marginalized and underserved communities has never been more critical.

Through a series of engaging plenary sessions, paper presentations, mobile workshops and experiential learning tour, the conference will provide a platform for participants to exchange ideas, share best practices, and collaborate on innovative approaches to extension and community development. The PAEPI International Extension Conference will serve as a catalyst for dialogue and action, bringing together a diverse range of voices and perspectives to explore how we can work together to create a more inclusive and equitable future. By fostering collaboration and cooperation across borders and disciplines, the conference will seek to identify new pathways for building stronger, more resilient communities that can thrive in the face of global challenges.

Objectives:

Generally, the conference aimed at fostering a sense of global citizenship and interconnectedness among extensionists, development workers, public and private higher learning institutions and extension service providers in the ASEAN region.

Specifically, it aims to:

1. Facilitate discussions and presentations on the importance of cultural diversity in education and community development;

2. Showcase innovative approaches and technologies that can enhance education, community development, and cultural preservation efforts.

3. Provide a forum for participants to promote the exchange of best practices, innovative ideas in the field of extension and community development and cultural preservation;

4. Enhance the visibility and credibility of PAEPI as a leading organization in promoting cultural diversity and community empowerment;

5. Create a platform for networking, collaboration, and partnerships among international stakeholders in the field of extension and community development;

5. Advocate for policies and initiatives that promote inclusivity, social justice, and sustainable development in extension and community engagement; and

6. Inspire and motivate extension professionals to continue their work in promoting cultural diversity and community empowerment for a prosperous future.

Thematic Areas:

1. Agriculture, food and environment
2. Health, nutrition and wellness
3. Education, culture, social and behavioral sciences
4. Engineering, smart analytics and ICT
5. Entrepreneurship and circular economy

Implementing Strategies

1. Organize the conference into thematic tracks corresponding to the five thematic areas, ensuring that each area receives focused attention and discussion.

2. Invite researchers, educators, and practitioners to submit abstracts for paper presentations, panel discussions, and workshops related to the conference theme and objectives.

3. Call for paper submissions addressing issues related to the conference theme and thematic areas, encouraging researchers and practitioners to share their findings and experiences.

4. Invite renowned experts and practitioners in each thematic area to serve as paper evaluators providing insights into current trends, challenges, and opportunities.

5. Invite renowned scholars and experts in the fields of education, community development, and cultural diversity to deliver keynote addresses to inspire and inform participants.

6. Facilitate panel discussions comprising experts and stakeholders from diverse backgrounds to delve deeper into specific topics within each thematic area.

7. Organize parallel sessions focused on specific sub-themes such as multicultural education, indigenous knowledge preservation, community-based tourism, sustainable development, etc.

8. Provide opportunities for participants to present their research findings, extension projects, and innovative ideas through poster presentations.

9. Provide ample networking opportunities for participants to connect, collaborate, and exchange ideas, fostering partnerships and collaborations beyond the conference.

10. Organize cultural exchange programs, including performances, exhibitions, and culinary experiences, to showcase the rich cultural heritage of the host country and participating regions.

11. Offer virtual participation options for those unable to attend in person, ensuring inclusivity and broader participation.

12. Provide avenues for the publication of conference proceedings, papers, and research articles in reputable journals to disseminate knowledge and insights generated during the conference.

13. Showcase cultural performances, exhibitions, and culinary experiences from Thailand and other participating countries, celebrating diversity and promoting cross-cultural understanding.

14. Offer avenues for participants to publish their research findings and best practices in conference proceedings or reputable journals, ensuring the dissemination of valuable knowledge and insights generated during the conference.

Keynote and Plenary Speakers

The plenary speakers at the international extension conference shall offer valuable insights on the latest trends and best practices in the field of extension and community engagement. They can share their experiences and lessons learned from successful extension programs, providing participants with practical knowledge and strategies to apply in their extension projects and programs.
